Current Comment

By R. H. K.

The opinions (if any) expressed herein, are not necessarily those of The Campbell Press.

Several days ago I was amazed to read, in the San Jose News, an article supporting the "humane pound" act, which will be on the November ballot. The proposed law would deprive those engaged in medical research of the large supply of animals gathered by pounds throughout the state—animals that are now available for laboratory and observation work, and which, if not used for these purposes, would be destroyed anyway.

Naturally, the medical profession, and everybody else who realizes the important part animals have played in the remarkable results achieved by medical science in the past few decades, are bitterly opposed to the proposed act, which can best be described as the "opening wedge for an anti-vivisectionist law sponsored by a misguided minority completely out of sympathy with, and even definitely hostile to the medical profession."

Needless to say, the Santa Clara County Medical Society came down on the News with both feet, and that paper hurriedly issued an invitation to the society to submit an article stating their views on the issue. The reply appeared in last night's edition, and in clear, precise terms, states the profession's case against the act. Any of you who have been toying with the idea of voting for the measure should read that article, consult your doctor or your own intelligence, and be prepared to vote an emphatic "no" on the "humane pound" act.

The "hot" freight car (and there's no doubt in my mind that it's hotter than a little red wagon) which has thrown hundreds of men out of work and closed practically all warehouses in the Bay area in a virtual lockout, rolls merrily on its way, and before the week is out it will probably succeed as the means to a complete shut-down of all warehouses.

Personally, I am inclined to think that this "hot" car was brought into the bay area for the purpose it seems to be serving so admirably. If I am right in that conjecture, warehouse operators are entitled to the slag end of the dispute, and I trust they get it. If, on the other hand, the car is not being used as a club, why in the world dodn't the operators themselves take the cursed thing down to the car ferry slip and shove it into the water? As it is, the entire area—including the country round about for a hundred miles or more—is taking a terrific beating. The men, who are upholding a principle which means a lot to them, and without which there would be chaos in the ranks of labor, are taking a beating, and the operators themselves certainly can't be making much money these days.

When the "committee of 43" was set up as a sort of labor arbitration board, the coast generally hoped that reason would supplant lockouts, strikes, and their accompanying ills. Those expectations, unfortunately, have not materialized, and if the "hot" car was their idea, the sooner the committee disbands, the better off San Francisco will be.

At this writing, with the "four power" conference not yet over, it would be ambitious indeed to try to predict definitely the outcome. The world generally, and the readers of the Press particularly, will know all about it before this paper reaches them. It is almost universally conceded, however, that the solution will closely parallel that outlined by "big shot" commentators yesterday. If you had your radio on at all, you couldn't have missed hearing at least one of them.

Survey Shows T.B. "Follow-ups" Are Invaluable

The discovery of six cases of previously unsuspected active tuberculosis in the families of students who had shown evidences of tuberculosis infection in the annual surveys of Santa Clara county schools were first results of follow-up work done by Mrs. Ann Castellanos, visiting nurse of the Santa Clara County Tuberculosis association, according to a report released by Dr. B. W. Wardrip, chairman of the case finding committee.

The statistical report showed that these six cases were found from among 151 members of students' families who had been examined. Four other cases of active disease were found among 24 members of the families of tuberculosis patients under the care of private physicians, and eight cases were found among family contacts followed up by official health departments. There was thus a total of 18 cases of active tuberculosis found in persons who, if it were not for the follow-up work, would have continued in ignorance of their condition until it was far advanced and symptoms occurred.

"The results of the follow-up work are a real demonstration of the main problem in the control of tuberculosis," said Dr. Wardrip in releasing the report. "Every case of tuberculosis comes from another case, and these unsuspected sources of infection can be discovered only by diligent tracing and careful examination of every person who has come in contact with a recognized infection."

This work is a further extension of the activities of the local tuberculosis association, which in cooperation with the various health departments four years ago began its program of tuberculin testing Santa Clara county high school students for tuberculous infection. The nursing service, as well as the x-raying in the school surveys is financed by proceeds of the annual Christmas seal sale.

Every year, active cases of tuberculosis have been discovered among high school students, and their early recognition meant easier and quicker cure.

BIRTHDAY DINNER PARTY FOR PATSY SHUMWAY 23rd

Patsy Shumway, daughter of C. W. Shumway, was honored on her sixteenth birthday, Sept. 23 with a dinner served by Mrs. Ellen McDonald, caterer ,in San Jose. Present to convey their best wishes to Patsy were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gardner, Mr. William Hiatt, Mr. and Mrs. George Coyle and twin daughters, Barbara and Bernice, Mildred McVey and Mr. Shumway.

ADA REBEKAHS EXPECT VISIT OF DEPUTY PRES.

The official visit of Mrs. Fern Krogh, district deputy president, to Ada Rebekah lodge No. 223, of Campbell, will be on Oct. 4 at 8 P. M. in Odd Fellows hall. Mesdames Anna Bachman, Dorothy Eddlemon, Myra Payne are the hostesses of the evening.

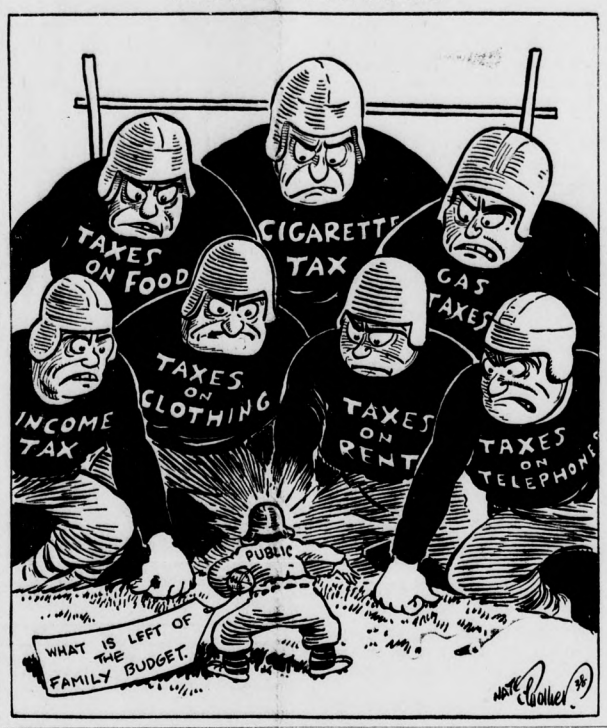
DR. F. N. PLUMMER
Optometrist

With offices in the First National Bank Building, San Jose, Dr. Plummer features the best of service in Optometry, and will examine your eyes and prescribe and furnish glasses when needed. Dr. Plummer backs up all his work by his own reputation for reliability. Your eyes are the most delicate organ and when errors of refraction occur, they require the attention of an expert.

Dr. Plummer is fully equipped with the very latest instruments for measuring the exact status of each eye, and when this is recorded he knows how to translate it into glasses that will give perfect comfort and satisfaction.

Many children have had their eye troubles properly corrected at this office, enabling them to improve in their studies at school. Telephone Ballard 80.

NOT A CHANCE



Registration At High School Is Over 500 Mark

Students have been enrolling in both of the Campbell Union schools throughout the week, increasing materially the number of last year.

The high school registration now stands at 506 as compared with 446 on the opening day last year.

The grammar school also has an increased attendance, an additional 60 bringing the roll up to 730, making a total to date in the two schools of 1236. Late enrollees due to the late fruit season, are expected to increase this total.

This speaks well for the growth of this area, as many grammar schools are beginning to show a smaller enrollment due to the declining birth rate.

MRS. D. H. CRAMER HOSTESS TO PUNDITA CIRCLE

Mrs. D. H. Cramer was hostess for the opening meeting of Pundita Circle, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

Mrs. Rose E. Hanger, president, presided over an interesting business meeting. The program hour was in charge of Mrs. L. J. Carboni and Mrs. George Smith, Jr. The subject "Music" was presented by Mrs. Carboni with an outline of music and a short biographical sketch of Charles Gounod and a few interesting items on the life of Stephen Collins Foster.

Hugh Cramer and his friend Carl Diesenroth who acts as his accompanist came down from Stanford and provided the musical numbers, "Even Bravest Hearts May Swell" from Faust, "Forgotten" (Eugene Cowels) and "Chloe" (Song of the Swamp by Neil Moret).

Dainty refreshments were served by the committee.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Rose E. Hanger, Oct. 12.

SIGMA SIGMA OPENS FALL SEASON TUESDAY

Opening its fall season, the Sigma Sigma society of Campbell met Tuesday evening, Sept. 27 at the home of Miss Zadie Rice on North Union avenue.

A handkerchief shower for Miss Helen Stray, who will sail Oct. 11 on the Matson liner Monterey for Honolulu, was the feature of the evening, and the Hawaiian motif was carried out in the decorations and refreshments.

Mrs. O. C. Jensen, the new president, presided at a brief business meeting and appointed committees for the coming year's program.

At a special meeting of the finance and budget committee of Campbell Union High school P. T. A. Wednesday night, plans were laid for a turkey whist to be held Nov. 10 in the new high school gymnasium.

Local Clubmen Attend District Meeting, Gilroy

Seventeen of the local Kiwanis club motored to Gilroy Wednesday evening to attend the district convention.

C. P. Klassen conducted the musical features of the program, of which the major item was the election of a new lieutenant governor. The result, a 10 to 9 vote, elected Henry H. Buell of San Jose.

Next Tuesday the club will hear Bill Rickers of West Campbell avenue, in an informal talk on his "Impressions of Europe" gained from an extensive visit in many of the European countries. Chairman will be C. P. Klassen.

GRAMMAR P.-T.A. TO HOLD FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

The Campbell Union Grammar school P. T. A. will hold its first meeting of the fall season Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 2:30 p. m. in the kindergarten room.

Mrs. J. O. Leverton, the program chairman will distribute the programs for the year. The chairmen of the various committees will give their reports.

At the close of the business session a reception will be held for the teachers, with the executive board as hostesses for the day. All members and friends are urged to attend.

Members of the executive board will meet at 2 o'clock in the teacher's room for a business meeting before the regular session.

WEDDING LICENSES, APPLICATIONS, BY LOCAL FOLKS

Campbell seems to be enjoying an epidemic of weddings which began in the summer and is still going merrily on.

Saturday application for a license was registered by Frank Alford, 27, and Daisy Holder, 18, both of Campbell.

Monday an application was made by Robert Duncan, 21, and Bernice Woodin, 17, both giving Campbell as their residence.

The same day a license was granted to Glenn Holtz, 24, of Los Gatos, and Marjorie Prout, 23 of Campbell.

CUTTINGS ON VISIT TO SON

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Cutting left Monday morning for Mason City, the town of Coulee dam builders, where their son, Dr. Cecil Cutting is now located as head surgeon for that federal project.

Dr. Windsor Cutting, who was connected with John Hopkins university after his return from study in Europe, will be instructor in advanced medics of Stanford university at the Lane-Stanford hospital in San Francisco. He has been named assistant professor of therapeutics.

Dr. Merrill New Pres. Local Chest

The various organizations participating in the Campbell community chest were represented in the meeting held Friday night to consider the 1939 budget.

The goal set was $1500, less than that of last year, but more than was raised. The dates set for the campaign are Oct. 10 to 20.

The amounts allotted to the various organizations include: library association, $500; relief, $400; collections and office expense, $100; scout building, $100; local scouting and cub work, $75; Santa Clara County Community council for scout headquarters, $100; for Camp Fire Girls headquarters, $25; local work, $25; Y. M. C. A. activities for boys in the seven districts in the council, $150; surplus, $25.

The one new item in the budget, that for activities for boys, was explained by Harold Bramsen, head of Y. M. C. A. work, as that being conducted in other communities.

New officers were elected as follows: President, Dr. W. I. Merrill; vice president and general manager, Ira Grim; financial and recording secretary, Jack Murdock, and other directors, H. M. Shadle, W. R. Coupland, Howard J. Smith, W. H. Stray, Miss Jessie L. Lewis, and Mrs. F. O. Bohnett.

A motion was carried to send $40 of the Red Cross funds to the American Red Cross to aid in relief in New England states.

Train Hits Load of Cots; Nobody Hurt

A truck of the Winchester Dried Fruit comapny standing in front of their warehouse (the former Hyde Cannery) awaiting its turn to be unloaded, rolled gently backward while the driver Harry Shepherd was inside, until it was partially on the Southern Pacific tracks.

Unfortunately it happened just at the hour when train 31, which arrives from Los Gatos was due, and it struck the left side of the truck, whirled it around and showered dried apricots over the engine and the right of way.

No serious damage was inflicted upon the engine which was soon on its way, advertising Campbell apricots in a new way.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES
J. H. Bennett, Pastor

The church will this week-end enter into its rally session. A fine program has been arranged for the opening week of the church life.

Next Sunday morning at 10 a. m. the Sunday school rally of all departments will take place. Dennis Bennett, superintendent of the school, has arranged a fine program. At the rally worship at 11 a. m., 22 gold and silver award shields will be presented to those children of the general school whose attendance during the summer has been almost 100 per cent. The primary department reports a big increase in numbers. Mrs. J. H. Bennett is now able to help with these children.

All members and worshippers are asked to be sure to attend this Sunday morning at 11 a. m.

At 6:30 p. m.: Rally and promotion worship program of the evening C. E. groups. All adults are invited to attend and feel the encouragement of these fine gatherings. A special program will be used, and Reverend Collett will show his pictures and speak to the young people on India.

A rally fellowship supper of the church families will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 5, at 6:30 p. m. Pot luck supper in charge of the guild groups. It will be a get-together affair and a special program of music and speaking will be arranged. Be sure to attend as important arrangements for 1939 will be announced.

Ira R. Abbott is planning to attend 3 days of the convention of school superintendents, called by state superintendent of public instruction, Walter Dexter, to be held in Pasadena from Oct. 6 to Oct. 8.

San Jose's O. K. to Sewer Hookup Being Sought

The board of directors elected to conduct the affairs of the Campbell Sanitary district held a meeting Monday evening at which they chose J. O. Leverton, president, and Ross Trowbridge secretary. Clyde C. Kennedy who conducted the preliminary survey, was named as engineer.

Before any further work can be done San Jose must give consent to the Campbell district to connect with its outfall sewer, then, if granted, formal application for the $77,000 worth of WPA labor will be made.

Consent or refusal of San Jose will probably hinge upon consideration of a six point recommendation made to City Manager, C. B. Goodwin last March by city engineer W. L. Popp.

"1—The city of san Jose must insure its facilities for taking care of contiguous territory by expansion. Therefore, any contact should be for a comparative short period of time—say 10 years—or at any time that all of San Jose's capacity is needed for territory lying within its limits.

"2—Rental fee should be based on the value of San Jose's outfall system from point of connection to the bay, costs and maintenance—proportion figured on the composite factor of flows and population.

"3—The license should bear any present or future obligations that may be imposed upon the city in any way by regulation or treatment.

"4—No storm water should be permitted.

"5—Character of sewage should be controlled so as to insure against damage to the city system and also regulated so as to conform to any present or future rules, regulations or ordinances governing industries in the city of San Jose.

"6—Total 24 hour discharge into San Jose's outfall should be limited to a maximum figure. In the absence of actual figures as to population and industry uses, I can only estimate this at approximately 500,000 gallons per day."

"GARDENS" TO BE TOPIC AT WOMAN'S CLUB

"Gardens"—that is the topic for consideration at the meeting Monday, Oct. 3, of the Country Woman's club.

Dora M. Scudder, representative of the California Nursery company of Niles, will be guest speaker and with a projection machine will show colored slides. She will dwell particularly on bulbs as this is the beginning of bulb planting season. An opportunity will be given at the conclusion of the talk for questions.

In the absence of the appointed chairman, Mrs. M. E. Purmort, Mrs. Jessie L. Shelley will act in that capacity. Decorations will be in charge of Mrs. A. W. Johnson, Mrs. H. M. Shadle, Mrs. R. E. Arnold, and Mrs. W. D. Sturtevant.

The board of directors will meet at 2 o'clock; business meeting at 2:30, and program at 3. Dues for 1938-39 are now payable.

FEATURED SPEAKERS FOR FED. MEETING

The Santa Clara County Federation of Women's Clubs will have two featured speakers at their meeting, the first of the season, to be held Friday, Sept. 30, in Morgan Hill at the Methodist church at the south end of Main street, with the Morgan Hill club as hostesses.

Following the business session which will open at 10 o'clock with Mrs. W. C. Colt, president, presiding, Mrs. Arthur L. Shellhorn of Hollywood, state chairman of American Homes, will be the morning speaker. In the afternoon Attorney C. C. Cottrell of San Jose, former assemblyman, will speak on the proposed amendments on the November ballot.

A noon luncheon will be served by the ladies of the church.

'Sell-Out' of Czechoslovakia Fails to Erase War Dangers

By Joseph W. La Bine

Foreign

A month ago, long before Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler challenged the world at his Nuremberg Nazi congress, before Geoffrey Dawson's London Times editorialized on the advisability of giving Germany her way, Great Britain showed signs of weakening in the struggle to keep Czechoslovakia intact. All summer her Viscount Runciman had tried to make peace between Prague and 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans who wanted autonomy and eventual annexation by Germany, yet nothing was accomplished. Moreover, though Britain was pledged to aid France, who has a pact with Czechoslovakia, it has long been apparent that what England wanted, above all, was peace.

Fortnight ago, as Berlin and Prague veered on the edge of war, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain took his first airplane ride, speeding to Fuehrer Hitler's chalet at Berchtesgaden in a desperate effort to stave off a conflict that would certainly involve all Europe. Next day he flew back, hastily calling his cabinet into session. To France went an invitation: Would Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet come to London for a conference? They would, and did, rushing across the channel like hungry dogs after a bone.

By this time it was apparent Europe's two greatest democracies were playing ball with Adolf Hitler, were willing to sacrifice Czechoslovakia to keep Der Fuehrer satisfied. After a week-end's study, the French statesmen went home. A few hours later, from simultaneous cabinet meetings in London and Paris, came announcement of the scheme that spelled Prague's doom.

The scheme: (1) Cession to Germany of Sudeten areas in Czechoslovakia which are overwhelmingly German; (2) a plebiscite to determine future status of Sudeten areas where German population is more than 50 per cent; (3) international guarantee of Czechoslovakia's remaining boundaries.

It was plain that Prague had been sold down the river without a hearing, since the British-French plan received French cabinet approval before Czech Minister Stefan Osusky was officially notified in Paris. When he finally was told, Minister Osusky's lips trembled as he asked newsmen: "Do you want to see a man convicted without a hearing? Here I stand."

Though immediate responsibility for the sell-out was directed first at Neville Chamberlain, observers soon placed it on France's doorstep. Actually, Premier Daladier had inspired the English conversation with Hitler, had urged Britain to back down on Franco-British agreement of April 29 to defend Czechoslovakia. But whatever the cause of this capitulation, it probably cost both Premier Daladier and Chamberlain a good-sized chunk of public support. As before, democracy had capitulated before the bluff of a totalitarian state.

Still left to straddle was Czechoslovakia's unequivocable opposition to the scheme. Shouted Premier Milan Hodza: "In the name of the lawful authorities of this state I declare that . . . the government will defend completely the integrity of the state. A plebiscite would be unacceptable." While Hungary and Poland began looking for liberation of their minorities in Czechoslovakia, while Soviet Russia considered coming to Prague's aid a moot question was whether the orphaned nation might not become another Spain, in which Communistic Russia and Nazi Germany would furnish the manpower for a civil war.

Business

In the U. S. last year were $65,648,000,000 in securities wholly or partly exempt from federal income tax. Of these, $50,522,000,000 were eligible for assessment if the U. S. should change its mind about exempting government securities (federal, state, local). In 1937, this investment brought security holders an estimated $1,544,000,000 interest, which at the 4 per cent normal tax rate would yield $62,160,000. Actually, the tax would be higher, since most exempt securities are held by individuals and corporations paying a higher tax rate.

For years, men have run for office on a promise of outlawing tax exempt securities, and next winter's congress will have a chance to fulfill the promise. Backed by White House favor, new tax measures will include not only this feature, but also a plan for levies reciprocally arranged on salaries of state, local, federal officers. Still uncertain is a proposal to broaden the tax base by including lower income brackets.

Labor

Mushroomed in little more than a year from 20,000 to 400,000 members, C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers of America is headed by Homer Martin, one-time preacher, is run by young zealots who split last June into two factions accusing each other of communistic leanings. Result was President Martin's dismissal of three vice presidents and a secretary-treasurer, temporary suspension of another vice president.

Fearful lest his pet union be torn asunder, disliking U. A. W.'s publicity, John L. Lewis finally secured Homer Martin's permission to intervene after the latter insisted U. A. W.'s autonomy be preserved. To Detroit went C. I. O.'s Sidney Hillman and Phillip Murray for a two-week study.

Outcome was labor peace, temporarily at least. Though Homer Martin won his autonomy plea, he gave in on other points, allowing Peacemakers Hillman and Murray to decide whether U. A. W.'s suspended officials shall be reinstated. In the future, they will help U. A. W. settle inter-union squabbles.

Politics

Among candidates in Pennsylvania's primary elecion were Philadelphia Mayor S. Davis Wilson and Gov. George H. Earle, both running for Democratic senatorial nomination. Candidate Wilson lost, was subsequently indicted for misconduct in office by a grand jury summoned by Candidate Earle. In another phase of the campaign, Atty. Gen. Charles J. Margiotti ran for gubernatorial nomination, using as campaign fodder the charges that Governor Earle had extorted money from state contractors and employees, and "sold" legislation.

Appointed to investigate was a Dauphin county grand jury. Almost immediately Governor Earle sprang into action, summoned the legislature and rushed through special bills which would defeat the grand jury's investigation, would instead leave the quiz up to the governor's hand-picked legislative committee.

Fortnight ago this committee met, yawning politely over six days of perfunctory testimony. Not until Accuser Margiotti himself took the stand was there much interest. His testimony: (1) That Governor Earle's administration leaders had "sold" legislation to beer and movie interests for $150,000; (2) that Governor Earle prompted him to go ahead with the probe of Philadelphia politics; (3) that the governor had borrowed money from Matthew H. McCloskey Jr., contractor working on many state jobs. When Witness Margiotti had finished, administration critics admitted he had been permitted to speak more freely than they expected.

Still to be heard from were scores of witnesses including State Rep. Charles Melchiorre, Philadelphia Democrat, and Governor Earle himself, whose senatorial campaign will be decided a bare two months hence. Also to be heard from was the state Supreme court which is deciding legality of the legislature's "rubber stamp" bills, one of which would remove District Atty. Carl B. Shelley from supervision over the grand jury quiz. In his place would be Atty. Gen. Guy K. Bard, a governor's appointee. Moreover, no one knew if the grand jury would be permitted to investigate before the legislative committee concluded its hearings.

Medicine

Hand in hand with hard times goes poor health, an outgrowth of public inability to pay doctor bills. Since Depression, government has supplied health service to relief clients, but thousands of borderline cases have gone unaided. Last July, President Roosevelt called a public health conference in Washington, where envoys of the potent American Medical association fought a federal plan for compulsory sickness insurance. Their reason: A. M. A.'s historic opposition to socialized medicine.

But medicine, like other professions, has suffered with depression. Since a crisis loomed, since the national health conference offered other proposals less disfavorable to highly ethical U. S. doctors, fortnight ago A. M. A. called an emergency meeting of its house of delegates at Chicago.

A. M. A.'S PRESIDENT ABELL
Ethics appeared to be changing.

Opening day they heard Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., president, explain that A. M. A. "has constantly opposed any attempt on the part of . . . governments to make medical care a political issue." They also heard President-elect Rock Sleyster of Wauwatosa, Wis., whose state house of delegates had just recommended a trial of sickness insurance, warn that: "It is . . . our duty to oppose in every way . . . unsound doctrines."

Second day, delegates voted to take every concession government offered, so long as government could be held in check. Opposed was sickness insurance, which would work like social security. Favored were: (1) Hospital service insurance, particularly as a community project; (2) extension of U. S. public health service; (3) creation of a federal department of health; (4) disability compensation; (5) help for indigent.

Wherever government must be mixed with medicine, A. M. A. favored local and state control. Explained a resolution: "The role of federal government should be principally that of giving financial and technical aid."

If A. M. A.'s resolutions showed a trend to changing ethics, an even greater trend was shown in the suggestion offered by Dr. Charles A. Dukes of Oakland, Calif., who wants district groups of physicians to advertise their service and its cost. Though it never reached a vote, the Dukes resolution received approval of a committee on miscellaneous matters, indicating what may be expected at A. M. A.'s next annual convention.

Domestic

Massachusetts sent 3,200 delegates campaigning for the 1940 convention. Wisconsin's 700 carried milkpails and Maine sent Rudy Vallee, who joined the navy at 15 and was sent home sick. Thus, at Los Angeles convened 150,000 members of the American Legion. Before the weeklong meeting opened, most fireworks had exploded. Resolutions were mostly against isms and aliens, and Chicago was virtually assured the 1939 convention. Slated for certain election as national commander was Stephen F. Chadwick, Seattle attorney, whose three opponents withdrew one by one.

War

In Spain, where Europe's Czechoslovakian crisis was bound to have an effect, Germany reportedly withdrew much of her war equipment from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent army, while all fronts settled down to watch the game of diplomatic chess being played by Britain, Germany and France. Only action was at Spanish Morocco, where 35 died in a loyalist uprising, and at the Ebro front, where loyalists recaptured trenches previously taken by rebels. Hopefully awaited at Barcelona, where air raids had just killed 31, was an agreement by combatants to co-operate in preventing future civilian bombardments.

● In China, while one invading Japanese force reached within 75 miles of besieged Hankow, nine Nipponese warplanes flew over Canton and made five direct hits on the Stout Memorial hospital, operated by the American Baptist mission. Shanghai harbor, which once teemed with warships of all lands, showed by a nose count to have no British vessels, two French, three Italian, two American, seven Japanese.

● In Palestine, 13 British air force planes clashed with rebelling Arab tribesmen, killed 130 to write another chapter in the Holy Land's war between Jews, Arabs.

Smart New Day Fashions

BOTH these dresses are so pretty and so simple that you will want to make them up several times, in different colors. And with such beautifully simple designs, whose whole charm is a matter of line, you can use colors as gay as you please, now that gay colors are smart, and they look so pretty in the fall.

A Charming School Dress.

This is a classic style in which growing girls always look pretty. The snug waist and flaring skirt are so becoming, and just grown up enough to delight them! In wool crepe, cashmere, gingham or jersey, with fresh white collar and sleeve bands, it will be your daughter's favorite school frock. Make one version of it in plaid.

Scallop-Trimmed Day Frock.

You should certainly have several dresses made like this—it fits so beautifully and looks so smart. Darts at the waistline give it becoming slimness. The high square neckline and "shrugged shoulder" sleeves are very new. It's the useful kind of dress you can wear for shopping and business as well as around the house. Make it up in silk crepe, flannel, sheer wool or home-keeping cottons.

The Patterns.

1454 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 10 requires 2⅝ yards of 39-inch material without nap. Collar and cuffs in contrast require ⅜ yard.

1576 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material.

Fall and Winter Fashion Book.

The new 32-page Fall and Winter Pattern Book which shows photographs of the dresses being worn is now out. (One pattern and the Fall and Winter Pattern Book —25 cents.) You can order the book separately for 15 cents.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 149 New Montgomery Ave., San Francisco, Calif. Patterns 15 cents (in coins) each.

Music Cured Spider Sting

The Italians once cured the sting of the poisonous tarantula spider by music. The victim of the insect would gasp for air, bleed, become cross-eyed and often went raving mad, but when he heard suitable music he would recover. Often he would begin a dance, which would develop into a frenzy, after which he completely regained his health.

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes to the rescue and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next morning, while Barbara is telling her mother about her adventure, an urgent phone call comes from Mr. Sentry's office after his departure. Arriving home in the late afternoon, Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly confirm the story, and Sentry takes it hard. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's, Sentry's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle. Mr. and Mrs. Sentry call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk. Phil Sentry, son at Yale, is disturbed at the possible implications and suspicion of Miss Wines' absence from her rooms for three days during August. He goes home to help. Sentry is arrested and booked for murder.

But when Phil opened the door he saw a young man he did not know, and the man said: "I'm Professor Brace. Is Miss Sentry at home?"

Phil was bewildered; but then Barbara, drying her eyes, came past him. "Of course!" she said. "I'm sorry, Professor! I'd forgotten you were coming."

She shook hands with him uncertainly. He said, looking at their pale faces, at Barbara's red eyes, "I'm afraid I've come at the wrong time."

No one had asked him to come in. He still stood in the open door. Phil started to speak; but Barbara said, "Oh no!" She put on, quickly, like a mask, a bright vivacity. "Come in," she invited. "There's just the family here, and grandmother." She took his hat. "Take off your coat," she said.

He followed doubtfully. In the living-room Barbara said: "This is Professor Brace, mother. You remember I told you about him? How kind he was?"

Mrs. Sentry spoke composedly. "Yes, indeed Good evening, Professor Brace. Barbara told me you rescued her from some embarrassment." She thought: We must go on in normal ways, as if nothing has happened; and she added: "Mr. Sentry was called out on business; and when you rang, we expected him. That's why you had such a reception committee."

He nodded, perceiving the tension on them all, uncertain what to do or say. Barbara introduced him to her grandmother. He sat down; and the talk ran haltingly, with many silences, till Mary, unable to endure this, presently rose.

"I've letters to write," she said. "If you'll excuse me." She escaped upstairs.

Phil asked old Mrs. Sentry, "Grandmother, want me to take you home?"

"Not yet! I'm not sleepy."

Silence oppressed them, till Barbara, forcing herself to talk, told over again the story of Johnny Boyd's battle with the policeman, and the resulting situation from which Professor Brace had rescued her. Phil and his mother scarce heard her, sat with stony faces, listening for any sound outside. But old Mrs. Sentry cut in at last, said sharply: "Stop talking nonsense, Barbara! It's no time for chit-chat! We ought to be finding out—"

Barbara turned to look at her; looked past her, came sharply to her feet, pale and shaken, pointing. "Look!" she cried. "Who's that?" They saw no one. "There was a man at the window!" she whispered.

Phil raced through the hall, and Professor Brace followed him. When they opened the front door, they faced two men. Something exploded, glaringly, in their faces, and Phil uttered an angry cry, and one of the young men said:

"It's all right, Mr. Sentry! Just a flashlight. We got word of Mr. Sentry's arrest. We're supposed to ask whether you have anything to say. Or perhaps your mother—"

Professor Brace, very still, looked at Phil. Phil demanded hoarsely: "Arrest? Who said so?"

"Inspector Irons."

"It's not true!"

"I'm afraid it is," said the reporter. "He's been booked for murder." And he urged: "Better take it easy, Mr. Sentry. I know how you feel, but there'll be a lot of newspaper men around here in another ten minutes. If you want to say anything—"

"I've a notion to knock your block off!"

The other grinned sympathetically. 'I know. Don't blame you. It's tough, all right. But keep your head, if you're wise." He looked at Professor Brace. "Are you their lawyer?" he asked.

"I'm Professor Brace of the Harvard Business School. But I'm afraid it's too early for the family to have anything to say to reporters."

Phil looked at him in surprise, then gratefully. The reporter nodded. "Sure," he agreed. "That's sensible. Be polite, but don't talk. And—take a friendly tip from me. Don't get mad and lose your heads, don't say something you'll be sorry for. And—don't take a crack at reporters. We're just doing our job."

He added: "Another thing that will save you some trouble, change your telephone number; get an unlisted number. Then no one can call the house except your friends."

Phil nodded grudgingly. "Thanks," he said, "What's your name?"

"Fisher. Dan Fisher. Anytime you can give me a break on the story, I'd appreciate it, of course."

Old Mrs. Sentry called from the living-room, "Phil, who's that?"

"A reporter, grandmother!"

"Well, bring him in here. I want to talk to him."

Phil hesitated; he heard his mother's whispered protest, heard the older woman say: "Nonsense! He can tell us what we want to know." She called again, "Phil!"

Then Barbara came into the hall, herself conveyed the invitation. "Mr. Fisher, my grandmother wants to see you, please." And it was she who made the introductions in the living-room. "Mr. Fisher was here the other night, mother," she explained. "He's a Princeton man, and he knows Joe Dane." As though these were credentials.

Her mother nodded icily; and old Mrs. Sentry said, "I heard you say Mr. Sentry had been arrested."

Fisher said quietly, "I don't know that he's been booked yet, but they're holding him."

"They think he killed this girl?" The young man hesitated; and she insisted: "Speak up! We're adults!"

"Yes," he admitted. "I believe they do."

"Why? They must have some reason?"

Fisher nodded. "I can tell you what little I know, if you want."

"That's exactly what I want."

He said: "Well, you see, the robbery was a fake. Whoever opened the safe knew the combination—or else was an expert safe-cracker. The combination had been changed since Miss Wines worked in the office. Only Mr. Sentry and his partner and Miss Randall knew it. There wasn't enough money in the safe, ever, to make it worth the trouble of opening, not for a—professional!

"So the girl didn't come there to rob the safe. She came to meet someone. A man brought her; drove her in town, let her out at a corner four or five blocks away at about eleven o'clock. A policeman saw him do it; and the man parked there and talked to the cop while he waited for her. He stayed there till half-past twelve and then decided she had made a fool of him. He told the cop she had promised to be back at twelve."

Fisher hesitated, but no one spoke; and after a moment he went on, "If you've read the papers, you know that the Medical Examiner found a reason why she might have been killed." And he added hurriedly: "She was missing for three days in August. Mr. Sentry was away at the same time. His office had his address, but they tried to get in touch with him during those three days and couldn't."

He finished quickly: "And she had a key to the office that was a duplicate of Mr. Sentry's key. So—Irons took him in for questioning—and the man that made her key recognized Mr. Sentry, identified him, before I left Headquarters."

Barbara, her eyes very wide, started to speak; but Grandmother Sentry said quickly, "Hush, child!" She spoke to Fisher. "I told you we were adults," she reminded him. "Don't mince words. I suppose you're trying to say that the girl was, as my generation used to put it, in trouble; and that the police believe she went somewhere with my son in August; and that they sometimes met in his office, to which he had given her a key; and that they met there the other night and that my son killed her. Is that it?"

Fisher said honestly, "I'm afraid so."

"Why should he kill her?"

"She told the man who brought her to town that she was going to get some money."

"Blackmail?" The reporter did not speak; and in the silence Barbara hiccoughed like a sob; and the old woman said: "Thank you! Good evening."

Fisher half-smiled. "I'm supposed to be interviewing you," he confessed. "But—"

"You've too much intelligence to try," the old woman interrupted. "Come in to my hotel and have a cup of tea with me some day, young man. Phil, show him to the door."

The reporter nodded. "I will come," he said, and he added: "If you haven't thought of it, you might call up Mr. Sentry's attorney." He turned toward the door, Phil on his heels. And no one spoke till Phil came back.

The District Attorney Bowed.

Then Mrs. Sentry asked, "Mother—was that necessary?"

"I've had my eyes open all my life, Ellen. Pretending not to see things doesn't keep them from existing. I've known for fifteen years that you and Arthur—"

"Mother!"

Old Mrs. Sentry hesitated; she looked at Barbara, pale and still like one who gazes upon unimagined horrors, and was silent. After a moment Phil spoke.

"I'll call Dean Hare, shall I, mother?" Phil asked.

She nodded. Professor Brace suggested, "I think that idea of an unlisted telephone is a good one, too."

While Phil was at the phone, old Mrs. Sentry remarked, "Ellen, I think you'd better put me up here tonight."

"I think so too, mother," Mrs. Sentry agreed. "You mustn't go back to the hotel, be there all alone." She seemed to welcome the opportunity for physical action, rose, said vigorously: "And I'm going to put you to bed right now, too! No use in your getting so dreadfully tired. Come."

Phil was telephoning from the library. The two older women, Grandmother Sentry with a word of farewell to Professor Brace, departed. Barbara looked at the professor helplessly.

"I feel—funny!" she confessed. "I keep thinking I ought to cry, but I don't really feel a thing."

"You're still numb," he suggested. "If a person is shot or stabbed, he just thinks at first that someone pushed him! He doesn't realize how badly he's hurt till the first shock is over."

"And of course," she reflected loyally, "I know it's not true! It couldn't be, could it?" Then, as Phil returned, she asked quickly, "Did you get Mr. Hare, Phil?"

Phil nodded. "Yes," he said. "He's on the job." He mopped his forehead. Then they heard Mrs. Sentry coming downstairs, and Phil and Barbara went to meet her as though to help her.

But she came in strongly, went to a chair, sat down. Only when she was seated did she slump with weariness. She looked at Professor Brace, her guard for a moment down.

"I feel as though we were all dreaming, insane," she said. "I'm glad you're—a stranger. If you were one of our friends, you'd be sympathetic, and—I don't think I could stand that." She added, "At first I didn't feel anything; but now—I'm beginning to!"

Phil on one side, Barbara on the other, pressed close to her, as much seeking comfort as giving it; and Barbara said miserably, "I think the worst part of it is not knowing what has happened, or what is happening!"

"Mr. Hare is on the job, Barb," Phil reminded her; and he explained to his mother, "I asked him to come later and tell us—whatever there is to tell—as soon as he knows."

Mrs. Sentry nodded. "We can't do anything but wait, I suppose!" Her head lifted. "It's outrageous!" she cried. "We're respectable, decent people. The police, the newspapers—"

No one spoke; and after a moment she said indignantly: "I turned off the lights in mother's room and looked out. There are cars in the street, Phil, and men standing around."

"Reporters, probably."

"I won't have that. Tell them to go away!"

Professor Brace said: "They'll stay, Mrs. Sentry. That's their job, you see."

"Well, it's a thoroughly disreputable job!" The doorbell rang, and she exclaimed, "If that's one of them, don't let him in!"

Phil nodded, and he and Professor Brace went together to the door. A man stood there; reporters grouped behind him, a policeman by his side.

Phil would have closed the door; but the man said: "Hold on! I'm District Attorney Flood."

Phil hesitated. "Oh, hullo, Mr. Flood," he said. "I've heard father speak of you. You played cards together sometimes, didn't you?" And he explained: "I'm Phil Sentry. Come in, won't you?"

The District Attorney came in and Phil closed the door, and introduced Professor Brace. "My mother's in the living-room," he explained, and led the other that way. "This is Mr. Flood, mother," he said.

Mrs. Sentry, without rising—she could not trust her knees—extended her hand. "Good evening. I've heard Arthur speak of you. This is our daughter, Barbara."

The District Attorney bowed. He was a big man, florid, physically powerful, a successful politician, and with a record of success in his profession too. Yet he seemed smaller now, and ill at ease. Barbara sat on the arm of her mother's chair, watching him; Phil and Professor Brace stood at one side, their faces somewhat in shadow.

Small-Mouth and Large-Mouth Bass of Different Type and Habits, Expert Says

The general rule for telling the difference between a small-mouth and a large-mouth bass is that the mouth of the small-mouth does not extend beyond a point below the eye, while the mouth of the large mouth does extend back of the eye, according to a writer in the Indianapolis News. The small-mouth is found in most clear-running streams and clear cold lakes from the St. Lawrence river to Dakota, and southward to South Carolina. It varies in different localities, but at maturity is usually one to two feet long, with a weight of two to five pounds. The adult is generally olive-green, often darker on the head. It has the arrowy rush of the trout, the untiring strength and bold leap of the salmon, while it has a system of fighting tactics peculiarly its own. It will rise to the artificial fly as readily as the salmon or the brook trout, under the same conditions; and will take the live minnow, or other live bait, under any and all circumstances favorable to the taking of any other fish.

The large-mouth black bass is as abundant as the small-mouth species, but prefers lakes, bayous, and sluggish rather than running waters. It is found from Canada southward even into Mexico. It averages in length one to two and one-half feet, and in weight two to eight pounds. Its color is dark green above and silvery below, the young having a broad blackish band on the sides with dark spots above and below it. It is called in various places by many different names, as Oswego bass, straw bass, green bass, bayou bass, green trout and chub. It is almost as game a fish as the small mouth. Its specific name "salmoides" (Latin salmo, salmon and Greek eidos, like) was given it from a fancied resemblance to a salmon.

Three Times in Row President's 'Purge' Attempts Prove Futile

Roosevelt Unable to Transmit Personal Popularity to His Followers; Political Prestige Suffers Irreparable Damage; Forced Realignment Seen Complete Flop.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—There was quite a sermon, for me, in the telegram of congratulations that Virginia's great leader, Sen. Carter Glass, sent to Senator George upon the occasion of Senator George's victory in the attempted New Deal "purge" in Georgia. I don't know why that telegram was not more widely printed, but it was typically like Carter Glass, so cryptic, so full of meaning, that I am going to reprint it here:

"Senator Walter F. George, Atlanta, Ga.

"God bless you, Walter. Likewise, the sovereign State of Georgia.

"Signed. Carter Glass."

To get its true meaning, one has to recall that Senator George was the third democratic senator, in a row, who was openly opposed by President Roosevelt; the third marked to be "purged" from the Democratic party and the third in a row to be victorious over the President's ill-advised attempt to dominate voters of a state, and, in due course, the congress of the United States, by personally picking the Democratic party nominees.

Next, Mr. George had been subjected to perhaps the strongest New Deal slap by the President, of any of the nine senators whom the President originally described as men behind the times. It will be recalled how Mr. Roosevelt, with Senator George on the platform, spoke his blessing of United States Attorney Camp at Barnesville, Ga., and announced his conclusion that Mr. George represented the past, not the future. It was on that occasion, too, that Mr. Roosevelt uttered the now famous: "God bless you, Walter; I hope we will always be friends."

The third feature to be remembered is that Mr. George won, that former Governor Talmadge was second and that the New Deal candidate was third in the race, and that Mr. George's victory was so overwhelming that there was no need for a run-off primary—the method in the solid Democratic states of choosing between the two highest candidates from the primary vote. This means that a majority of the voters—more than 50 per cent—voted for Mr. George.

President's Prestige Has Suffered Heavy Damage

Couple these facts with Senator Tydings' victory over Rep. David J. Lewis for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Maryland, and Sen. "Cotton Ed" Smith's substantial margin over Governor Johnston in South Carolina, and it appears to me that several conclusions are proper and justifiable. Mr. Roosevelt went into South Carolina in behalf of Governor Johnston and he went into Maryland to promise construction of several huge Chesapeake bay bridges and to point to the good qualities of Representative Lewis. Yet, the President's wishes were well ignored.

The conclusions I have reached—and I believe they will stand the most critical test—are:

1. Mr. Roosevelt is unable to transmit to his followers the same personal popularity that he has enjoyed since entering the White House.

2. His prestige as a political leader, which undoubtedly was slipping to some extent before, has now suffered irreparable damage.

3. The congress that will be elected in November will be the most independent, indeed, probably the most obstreperous, that the President has faced, and that spells trouble in a big way.

4. There can be no discounting the influence that victories for the conservatives, like those won by Tydings, Smith and George, will have on the rest of the country in the November elections. It is an honest statement, I believe, that there are numerous voters who have been wavering between the New Deal and the conservative school of thought, and a large percentage of them will turn to conservative candidate when they have a chance. They will be influenced strongly, and that fact worries the New Deal thinkers at the moment.

'Purge' but Step In Plan Of Political Realignment

But there is yet another thought in this connection. I refer to the President's program for a realignment of political groups in this country. He has called for it; of that there is no obvious doubt. The "purge" of the senators marked for political destruction was one of the early steps. So, it is significant that Mr. Roosevelt's early maneuver in the direction of a forced realignment has succeeded to the extent of a complete flop. The thing that started out to be a beautiful swan-like dive became a belly-buster, much to the chagrin of the great thinkers who surround the President and give him such poor political advice.

There will be a condition in the next congress that will be worthy of watching. Surely, no one will expect Tydings and Smith and George and Clark of Missouri and six or eight other senators to go out of their way to support a Roosevelt program in which they may not believe. There is the nucleus. There were already 20 or more senators of that mind. With those re-elected after overcoming the "purge," it seems reasonable to suppose that as little political credit as possible will be given to the President.

House members nearly always keep in close touch with the senators of their respective states, particularly if they are of the same political faith. They will take encouragement from the forthrightness of their seniors and, quite naturally, will be bolder and more outspoken. It will be much more difficult for Democratic Leader Rayburn to hold his majority together in the house of representatives because of this new-found courage and, in some cases, resentment.

All of which leads into a third phase. Few Presidents have been able to withstand bushwhacking from Capitol Hill. It confronts Mr. Roosevelt to an unparalleled degree because of the "purge." Thus, a further analysis seems to offer evidence, at least a hint, that Mr. Roosevelt's control of the Democratic party may be broken. If it is not now an accomplished fact, I see no reason to expect that the President can control the Democratic national convention of 1940. That, after all, is one of the things at stake in the President's ill-starred "purge" attempts.

Some Heads May Fall; New Spokesmen Appear

In consequence of these things, I have an idea that there will be many, many moves made during the next session and in the session just before the 1940 convention designed to take the Democratic party out of the hands of the Roosevelt advisers. I think you will see delegates being groomed here and there, 18 months before they are to be formally chosen. I believe also that state political bosses will become quite active next summer as they watch which way the wind blows. Some will guess wrong, some right. Some political heads will fall and new spokesmen will appear on the scene.

All of these things, I predict, will happen, barring one thing. That one thing is war. If there is a general European war on the horizon, then we may expect a different course of political events in the United States.

What I am about to say, now, is not said in discredit of the President. It is merely voicing a fact in politics. If there be a general war abroad, and, more particularly, if American relations become involved in it, then Mr. Roosevelt unquestionably will appeal for solidarity of public opinion, for unanimous support for the government of the nation. His spokesmen and henchmen will be busy as bees showing him to be the only man for the job, the only man capable of saving the nation. That happened in Woodrow Wilson's time and it has happened in every other war, and it will happen again.

Political Destruction Of Roosevelt Threatened

I know that Mr. Roosevelt is no more anxious to have the United States become involved in war than you or I. He realizes its cost in blood, as well as the disarrangement of world economics that follows. And if war comes, he naturally will want a united nation back of him. But, coldly and abstractly, I repeat that war conditions are the only set of circumstances that I see now which may prevent a thoroughgoing movement on Capitol Hill for the political destruction of Mr. Roosevelt. When I say, political destruction, I do not mean to imply, or to hint that opponents of the President within his own party want to send him to oblivion. They will seek—they are seeking, now—to dethrone him in every way except as titular head of the party. They want the guidance to come from old Democratic leaders and they want adherence to old Democratic principles. That is to say, the long-time oracles of the Democratic party have witnessed stupidity, sheer dumbness, on the part of the young squirts who have crowded close to the President, and they want to send those quacks back to the oblivion from which they came. Further, the old line Democrats want to avoid a wide-open split in their party. Unless that can be done in 1940, there will be a Republican victory followed by exactly the same conditions that wrecked the Republicans after the "purge" that the voters gave the G. O. P. in 1932 and 1936.

FARM RELIEF FAILS AGAIN

Paul Mallon expressed the view of most informed commentators when he wrote in a recent column: "The farm act is failing fast. The fact . . . . . is becoming so evident that many of Mr. Wallace's men will now concede privately they do not see how the situation can be worked out next year on the same basis."

This has been the unhappy experience of most farm acts of the past, no matter how sincerely inspired or efficiently administered. Time has again proven the old adge that "self-help is the best help," and that goes for the farmer as well as everyone else. If agriculture looks to political panaceas for permanent benefits, it will be foredoomed to disappointment. Real farm progress is coming from activities instigated and controlled by the farmers themselves, such as non-political farm marketing cooperatives which apply sound business principles to farm operation.

When it comes to achieving "self-earned social security," the American people leave the rest of the world at the post.

The figures show, for example, that there is about three times as much life insurance in force in this country as in the United Kingdom; about 30 times as much as in Japan, and about 60 times as much as in Sweden.

These figures are important, not only because they show what our citizens have done to guard against the exigencies of the future, but because of the influence of life insurance on the nation as a whole. Life insurance is a great stabilizing force—and a force that makes for progress and prosperity in the long run.

THE PUBLIC'S DEFENDER

Society can send its Albert Dyers marching to the San Quentin gallows, but the hangman's noose is punishment only, and the crime cure the nation anxiously seeks is not detection and conviction, but prevention.

Education is no magic cure-all, but it is the best and surest means society has yet found for discouraging crime. It holds, to date, our greatest hope of creating a sense of social responsibility in youth, of building healthy character through group activity in the playfield and classroom, and of instilling a love of decency and square dealing.

Education, as crime's deadliest foe, was vividly pictured by Dr. Reuben T. Shaw, president of the National Education association, during his visit to California last week. And in the misguided economies which today are depriving 800,000 school-age children of educational advantages in America, he found a situation typically responsible for crime in this country.

Fortunately, he could point no accusing finger at California whose great school system expends some $150,000,000 annually to assure 1,500,000 boys and girls adequate schooling from kindergarten through university. But he would have found cause for concern in efforts of misguided "economists" now seeking through the repeal of the sales tax and enactment of the Garrison Bond act, to abolish some of the very sources of tax revenue upon which the state's school system depends.

Solely as the public's defender No. 1 against crime, California's educational system deserves a vote of confidence, and it demands a vote of opposition to all questionable measures threatening it.

IN DARKEST AFRICA

The drums of war echo in the far places of the earth today. In Afghanistan in western Asia, on tiny islands dotting the south Pacific, the voice of Mars is heard and military preparedness prevails as the anxious watchword of the hour.

A little explored continent of darkness only a century ago, far removed from the strife of Europe, Africa today heeds the war god. From Capetown, at its southernmost tip, comes word that South Africa will spend $30,000,000 to strengthen coastal defenses, increase her army and build her air force. When the muffled drums of war quicken pulses and speed rearmament in distant Africa, the tribal god of battles is calling in far places!

This modern up-to-date dairy is one of the best known in this community. It is clean and sanitary in every particular. It is their endeavor to give the people the best milk and dairy products that can be had.

They buy their milk from the farmers of the surrounding territory. It is collected and brought to them in a most sanitary manner.

Their milk is pasteurized as soon as it reaches the plant. For this they have strictly modern machinery and their plant and equipment is immaculate.

Pasteurization of milk means to heat the milk to 145 degrees, holding it at that temperature for a given length of time and cooling it quickly. Thus the bacteria are eliminated and the qualities of the milk unharmed. If you have never seen this method of handling milk a visit to their plant will convince you it is the only way.

"A bottle of milk is a bottle of health," is an expression of today that is quite in order.

Everywhere health authorities are insisting that milk be served to school children. No need to worry about healthful foods when you use American Dairy products.

It is the policy of the American Dairy Co. not only to produce milk, cream, butter and ice cream that will meet with specified requirements, but a health product that only modern elaborate machinery and consideration for their product can produce.

The people of the community are indeed fortunate in having this popular dairy in this section.

SAN JOSE SAW WORKS
449 East Santa Clara Street — San Jose

Have the best equipped saw shop in the Santa Clara Valley for complete service in hand, band or circular saws, filed, gummed, retoothed, set and straightened. They have Henry Disston and Son saws for sale and offer expert service in repairing steel tapes.

If You Wish To Build Cheap See
SAN JOSE WRECKING & BUILDING SUPPLY CO.
184 Stockton Ave., San Jose. Phone Bal. 6817

They buy and wreck buildings by contract and are bonded wreckers with the latest of equipment. They always have good used building materials on hand at bargain prices. It is under the personal management of Mr. Rose who is offering the highest prices for buildings of every description.

Mr. Rose offers builders quite a market for materials and is able to make very attractive prices. The used material has been sorted over and what is bad has been eliminated so that everyone can rest assured that materials secured here can be of much service in construction work. This conserves materials and is a valuable service in the building transformation of the day.

This is a large business, with ample capital and thoroughly reliable in every way. There is no danger when you make a contract with them that some of the neighbors will be suing you for damages as they do all the work of wrecking operations in a very careful manner. They have all the latest mechanical equipment and understand the laws of falling walls and buildings so that there is no danger in their operations. It is very important that property owners should get rid of old buildings as they cease to be of value as an investment and it satisfies civic pride to get rid of eyesore old shacks. Let the San Jose Wrecking & Building Supply Co. bid on your wrecking or building job.

We would suggest that for either the wrecking of homes or buildings or materials it will pay to make a visit to his place and get figures as both departments of this service are calculated to make business hum.

Retain "Joe" McKinnon; Elect Him Supervisor of the 4th District

It is with pleasure we set before the people of the 4th District, mention of the excellent record of "Joe" McKinnon since he has been in office.

In fulfilling his many duties as Supervisor, Mr. McKinnon has shown outstanding ability, coupled with sincerity of purpose and good judgment. Honesty is a characteristic with him. His sincere regard for the trust which has been placed in him has obviously been displayed in the accomplishments noted, also his efforts to execute the duties set before him with characteristic enthusiasm and success. He devotes much time to the advancement of his community's welfare and assists his constituency in their individual problems. He is a man of natural optimism who thoroughly enjoys his work, and his splendid qualifications for the position have been brought to light by his actual services rendered.

It is not hard to understand how the personal abilities of Supervisor McKinnon have been able to win the admiration of the 4th district and all of his friends and acquaintances will be mindful of his merits when marking the ballot in November.

San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Assn.

81 W. Santa Clara, San Jose. Phone Columbia 300.

Many people do not understand what a Building & Loan Association represents. A person with five, ten, fifteen or twenty-five dollars to set aside each month cannot accumulate a large estate in a day, a month, or a year, but a fixed sum each month to which is added liberal interest will obtain the goal he seeks. Today one out of every ten people in America has found Building & Loan the ideal investment. Are you looking for a dependable income? If so, turn to the San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Association.

People are looking for safe investments and money loaned on the American home has proved to be safe. Can this be said of all investments? No security can possibly be better than the determination of the average citizen to own his home. Accounts up to and including $5,000 are fully insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Corp., an instrumentality of the United States Government. They are also in a position to finance the building of new homes and the refinancing of homes already built.

The officials of the San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Assn. are progressive yet conservative and enjoy an enviable reputation for fair dealings. This pioneer firm was organized in 1885. They have assumed a very important place of financial stability in the surrounding territory. In this review we wish to congratulate the people of this section upon having such a worthy institution at hand and we suggest to our readers to get in touch with the San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Assn. for saving. You may either call or write for full details.

Your transactions here aid in the upbuilding of the community as this Association is interested in the progress of our section and its presence here is essential to our welfare.

We desire to extend our congratulations to the San Jose Pacific Bldg. & Loan Assn. and its members for the good will they enjoy. We can recommend it with pleasure, knowing that all who have dealings here will be satisfied.

BEALE SANITARIUM

Ideally located at 1070 Lincoln Ave., San Jose. Mrs. Mabel Beale, a graduate nurse is the proprietress.

Physical Therapy, Swedish Massage, Electro-therapy, Hydrotherapy, Sun Lamps, Massage and Dietetics. Colonic Irrigation—Steam Baths. Separate Departments for Men and Women.

In a review of Santa Clara county there is no institution more worthy of mention than this foremost sanitarium so beautifully located where it is quiet. It is the ideal home for invalids and elderly people and just the place to go for a real rest. They have the most modernly equipped treatment rooms and special development in the laboratory and diet kitchen makes systematic study and rapid results in treatment possible.

Beale Sanitarium offers the patients rest and quiet, combined with every modern method of treatment and diagnosis. It has been built up to its present high standard by the tireless efforts of its efficient staff and the years spent and good results obtained deserve the praise of all.

In closing this brief review of the Beale Sanitarium we wish to state that their prices are most reasonable and suggest you write Mrs. Mabel Beale for information or phone Ballard 5450.

THE CALIFORNIA CONCRETE PRODUCTS CO.

Located On Monterey Rd., San Jose, Are The Manufacturers Of Sewer Pipe, Drain Tile, Culverts, Irrigation Pipe, Septic Tanks, And Offer The Highest Type Of Workmanship — Use Only Best Of Cement And Sharpest Of Sand—Phone Ballard 6700.

In the presentation of new ideas in the aid of drainage there is no firm that has been of greater help to the public than The California Concrete Products. Co.

They are manufacturers of drain, sewer and culvert pipe. No matter whether it is for the sewer, drainage of the field or any other purpose, the concrete pipe is far superior as it does not need joints that will let water in as it is to a certain extent porous and drains the land as it goes, the water seeping in. The old fashioned tile has joints that were partly open and would let substances in and get clogged up, much oftener. They always keep a large supply of all sizes and thus offer immediate delivery on everything you may want in this line.

The California Concrete Products Co. specialize in the manufacture of concrete pipe for irrigation purposes and these are offered in all sizes and are especially constructed for the purpose so that there is no loss of water as it flows through their pipe.

They have a very modern plant and all of their concrete products are manufactured from the best of materials and of sufficient thickness to make them stand the ravages of time as well as any pressure that may be on them.

In making this review of the community we wish to direct your attention to this establishment as one of our most valued interests and to the management as among our leading citizens.

Santa Clara County Fire Insurance Co.

Rooms 8-9, Porter Bldg., Second and Santa Clara Sts. San Jose. Phone Ballard 8383

Will be moving into their fine new building at 60 N. 2nd St., San Jose, about the beginning of October, 1938. The transfer operations will be gradual so that there will be no interference in business transactions. This new building and adequate quarters are a credit to this company and San Jose.

The success of this company in the many years of its existence has been due to the kind of people who are numbered in its membership, people who take a personal interest in its property and in their company's welfare. A call on their agents, will enlighten you on a great many risks covered and will convince you of the quality being insured as some of the finest homes, both new and old, and many fine school buildings of the county are now being insured by the Santa Clara County Fire Insurance company.

This strong local company has quick assets (cash and bonds) in proportion to its liabilities, and the cash is deposited in Santa Clara county banks. No money is sent away to Hartford, New York, London or China. All reserves accumulated are invested for the upbuilding of the local community.

Ninety per cent of insurance premiums of all kinds paid in America today are to Mutual companies. Over 50 per cent of all the rural fire insurance in America is in Mutual companies like the Santa Clara County Insurance Co. of Santa Clara County.

In California there are 22 county mutual companies—all strong, going concerns with total assets of over one and one-quarter million dollars with which to pay losses promptly, and the Santa Clara County Fire Insurance Company is one of these. This company has constantly forced fire insurance rates down, and its name has come to mean "Service—Safety— Savings."

Insure with the Santa Clara County Fire Insurance Company. Help yourself and your community. Telephone Ballard 8383.

JOHN P. FITZGERALD

Elect A Capable, Experienced Man for District Attorney of Santa Clara County

To hold the office of District Attorney demands divers abilities, not possessed by every barrister. He must be familiar with the important precedents and must show a rare tact and broad view on life in general, plus a keen insight into the frailities of human nature. That is a rare order to fill and it is no doubt gratifying to the citizens of Santa Clara county to know that we have such a candidate as John P. Fitzgerald, chief deputy district attorney so ably filling his post, with a background of legal knowledge supplemented by practical experience.

To wish to devote himself to the office of district attorney is itself a gesture of the kind of sincere interest he holds in Santa Clara county. His record in civil work for the county is outstanding and his sound council has saved this county a great deal of money. Vote for this fearless and experienced man.

Despite the fearsome thunderings of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, a paradox of war-mad Europe is that the foes of Germany and Italy have far superior military equipment.

Though Rome and Berlin may shout and boast, a cold analysis of comparative strength shows that the inevitable "allies" can eventually defeat them in a war which might last as long as two years.

This fact has long gone unnoticed. It was not brought out until a few weeks ago when Germany opened her autumn maneuvers and began looking with hostile eyes at little Czechoslovakia, whose Sudeten German minority has allegedly been discriminated against.

Though Czechoslovakia herself is weak, though even Great Britain has a surprisingly small armed force, the mighty power of Russia and France is something to be reckoned with. Russia cannot afford to throw her entire weight against a European foe, because the threat of Japan necessitates maintenance of a good-sized force in the Far East. But the Soviet military machine is a wonder of the modern world.

In her weakened condition from the Chinese conflict, Japan cannot be considered an important factor in any current European war. The above figures on comparative military strength — furnished by the United States army and navy departments—do not even list Japan's land forces for this reason. Tokyo's only power lies in whatever "nuisance value" she might provide in Siberia to help her Fascist allies, Germany and Italy.

U. S. by Comparison.

Figures on America's military power are provided only for comparative purposes. Though the United States has abandoned her policy of complete isolation, her neutrality position is stronger than it was in the World war, when American aid was deemed necessary to crush Germany's imperialism.

Thus the lineup of great powers finds Germany and Italy on one side, opposed by Great Britain, France and Russia. Such European countries as Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Hungary are minor factors. Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland have avowed their intention of escaping complications.

Here, then, are the figures. In actual army strength — including standing forces, airmen and reserves—Russia, France and Great Britain have 26,725,000 men. Italy and Germany have less than half, or 10,725,000.

Great Britain's navy is alone bigger than the combined fleets of Italy and Germany, whose tonnage is 1,107,032. Britain's 1,758,478 tons, plus 699,342 tons from France, makes an opposition force of 2,457,820 tons. Some of this naval equipment will not be ready to use for several months, but the actual ratio at the present time is about the same.

In air strength, the "allies" have 15,400 planes, while Germany and Italy together have 11,500.

A Week or a Year.

It is interesting, though admittedly horrifying, to contemplate how long a general European conflict could continue. Several years ago the Italian general staff made the rash prediction that the next war would be finished within a week. This belief was based on the rising importance of fast planes, gas, long-distance guns and other fiendish implements of Mars.

But the theory has not been borne out in the three conflicts the world has seen these past five years. Italy's campaign to capture Ethiopia lasted an amazingly long time, considering the crude type of opposition offered by Haile Selassie's forces. And in China the Japs have met with similar resistance. Shanghai was not captured overnight by a terrific bombing attack; the campaign lasted closer to five months.

The most striking example of modern warfare is in Spain, where two powerful forces are fighting their battles along tactics similar to those used in the World war. Madrid was bombed hundreds of times and still found itself able to hold out against Generalissimo Franco's rebel troops.

Thus, militarists of 1938 are of the opinion that warfare has not changed much in the past 20 years. As in the World war, the doughboy is the most vital factor in land conflict. A similar comparison can be made on the sea, where the battleship is still the backbone of the fleet despite mighty naval planes.

"Ersatz" to the Fore.

Perhaps the major difference between 1918 and 1938 is that gold is not now so important. The "allies" have behind them a gold reserve almost 30 times the value of that of Germany and Italy, but the latter two countries now boast of their chemists who can manufacture "ersatz" or substitute materials of war. These products relieve them of some worry in the event of blockade, but there are certain essentials—like oil and cotton—which every nation must have to carry on successful warfare.

The discouraging inevitability of war has been growing in Europe's consciousness for five years, and out of that inevitability have arisen new methods of defense unparalleled in history. England, which is especially invulnerable to modern aircraft, has developed her "ARP" (air raids precaution) program to the point where almost every man, woman and child knows how to handle a gas mask. She has built bomb-proof and gas-proof cellars with feverish haste, constructed new coast defenses and trained expert anti-aircraft gunners.

But these precautions are minor compared to those of France, Germany and Czechoslovakia with their amazing "lines." Between 1929 and 1936, France employed 15,000 men to construct the Maginot line, a series of underground fortifications which extend from Belgium to Switzerland, aimed to protect the country against invasion from Germany.

Aunt Tibby's Trunk

By D. J. WALSH

Copyright—WNU Service.

"BUT, Mazie," remarked Bert Howard to his pretty little wife, "it isn't quite fair that Aunt Tibby should want to come back so soon; it's less than three weeks since she left, and she had been here six months. I have no objections to your aunt; she's a nice old lady, if a bit eccentric, but you always work so hard entertaining her that you wear yourself out. Between worrying over her comfort and fussing about the safety of that old cowhide trunk, home becomes a place of torment for me instead of a haven of rest."

And then Mazie, whose bobbed crown of glory was decidedly of the shade beloved by Titian, and with a temper to correspond, replied thus: "If you were properly interested in the welfare of your family you'd want to keep Aunt Tibby here all the time! Do you fancy that she herself would be so particular about that old cowhide trunk, as you are pleased to call it, if it didn't contain valuables? She told me—no, I won't say she exactly told me, but she gave me to understand, and, I know all the family have the same impression—that in it she carries her stocks and bonds. She has bequeathed the trunk to the one in whose home she happens to die."

"Mazie!" exclaimed Bert, putting his arms around his wife, "waiting for 'dead men's shoes' is sorry business! Do what you can for your aunt without making your family unhappy, but put all such ideas as you've just mentioned out of mind; they are unworthy of you!" and Bert stopped to kiss his wife good-by.

The first evening of Aunt Tibby's arrival Mazie began, "Barbara! do sit still! You'll make Aunt Tibby nervous!" or "John! don't walk so heavy!"

Aunt Tibby had been with them several weeks when she came down with a cold. The doctor called pronounced the trouble pneumonia. "Which at her age," said he (Aunt Tibby was 86), "is a serious matter. You had better get a nurse." Aunt Tibby had been so humored by her niece, however, that the nurse could do little to suit her, and Mazie was obliged to fetch and carry, to run up and down stairs until, ten days later, Aunt Tibby sank into her last sleep.

After the funeral the relatives who had gathered from far and near demanded that the will be read at once. So the old cowhide trunk was brought down to the living room and opened in the presence of all. It contained Uncle David's army uniform, a few books, half a dozen packages of old newspapers—and a long letter written by Aunt Tibby herself. This was addressed to her relatives in general and was a sort of confession. In it she stated that her income since Uncle David's death had been limited to a pension of $6 a month. That in some way the story had been circulated that this old trunk contained valuables and she had never contradicted it, fearing if she told the truth some one might put her in an old ladies' home, an institution she detested. She trusted her relatives would pardon her and that the old trunk would be kept for her sake; that it might prove a magic casket to the owner, just as it had to her.

The trunk was left with Mazie, as she was the only person who displayed the least desire to possess it. After everyone had departed she threw her arms around her husband's neck and cried, "Oh, Bert, can you ever forgive me?" Judging by the sigh of contentment she uttered Bert's answer was satisfactory.

Aunt Tibby was right; the trunk did prove a magic casket for Mazie. It stood in the upstairs hall where she had to pass it many times a day and whenever she was seized with envy, stubbornness or a desire for finery she could not afford, one glance at the old trunk was sufficient to dispel such feelings in a twinkling.

On the Highway

It is a curious trait in human nature that we will take off our hats when a woman enters an elevator, and be most apologetic if we bump into somebody inadvertently; but the instant we get our hands on a steering wheel we damn all mankind—woman and man alike.

Too often, we are inclined to look upon traffic guides and regulations as irritating restrictions designed primarily to keep us from having a good time, when the truth of the matter is, they have been devised solely for our convenience and comfort.

PIEHN'S MACHINE SHOP

27 Grant St., San Jose. Phone Ballard 1209.

Piehn's Machine Shop is under the direction of a management of wide experience in this business. Well equipped for all classes of machine shop work their workmen have established an enviable reputation for expert service and reasonable prices.

This firm is absolutely dependable and reliable. Whether it is just a small job to replace a broken piece, or a large quantity of machine work, you will find this company will take care of you most satisfactorily.

They are specializing in the cold riveting of ring gears for automobiles, and straightening of axles cold. If the bent axle is removed from the car and brought in for straightening, the cost is only small for a precision job. No heat is used in the process, as heat destroys the temper. They have a stock of exchange axles for all models of Fords and Chevrolets at this price, so that an immediate exchange can often be made.

In this business review we are happy to compliment Piehn's Machine Shop, and refer them to our readers.

FOR CAPABLE, FULL TIME REPRESENTATION
Elect John D. Foley State Senator

In Mr. Foley we find an ideal combination of talents so competant in the capacity as a law giver that he commands the respect of all. He is equipped with sympathetic understanding of all classes, adamant determination, honesty and love of justice and no one will ever be able to bend him to small sighted and selfish will. He will at all times stand for country above party where it is necessary to make such a choice.

His experience places him in a position to profit by the mistakes of others less gifted in experience and training. He will ardently aim to present and work to the best of his ability for the agricultural and industrial interests of our state of California. He is not a newcomer. He is a life long resident of Santa Clara county and knows its people and its problems. He has pledged himself to work for the interests of the farmer, the independent business man and working man. He has the courage of his convictions and will represent you. He asks all to consider his qualifications and support him in November election. Pol. Adv.

RE-ELECT
CHARLES C. SPALDING
CORONER OF SANTA CLARA COUNTY

Charles C. Spalding is one of our most conscientious officials of Santa Clara county and making a splendid coroner, both from a standpoint of efficiency and of economy. The office of coroner is a very important one because it so intimately concerns the public health and safety of the people. In times of epidemic no small part of the duty of that office is enforcement of health regulations in conjunction with the health office. In the event of death or disqualification of the sheriff the coroner acts as sheriff. In all cases of sudden death, death without medical attendant, suicide, accident, violence or death from unknown causes it it the coroner's duty to investigate and ascertain the cause of death. The fact that all such deaths are known to be thoroughly investigated by the coroner is always an important safeguard to public safety.

Charles C. Spalding is a very loyal, impartial official and his high conception of human life and his sympathetic and kindly nature are indeed appropriate qualities for this office. We know the activities of Coroner Charles C. Spalding are exteremely important to Santa Clara county. He is a candidate for re-election to this office and well deserves the support of all at the fall election. Pol. Adv.

RETAIN SUPERIOR COURT JUDGE
CHARLES W. DAVISON

Judge Charles W. Davison is one of the leading figures in Santa Clara county today, long prominent as a lawyer and as a judge. His career has been one of significance to the welfare and advancement of the people of this county and in his prsent position of honor and trust he commands the esteem and admiration of the profession with which he is associated and of the people of Santa Clara county. He naturally possesses a keen mentality of discrimination and breadth of judgment. He is one of our most popular officiels.

Sitting in review of human actions is a duty that calls for fine powers of discrimination, requiring of the judge on the bench that he is able to read human nature, to stand in the other man's shoes and only with such adaptability may a judge be said to possess the qualities necessary to success. These attributes in abundance are part of the equipment of Judge Charles W. Davison whose broad sympathies and dependable judgment have made his name widely known in Santa Clara county and his study reveals an acute mind before which the world is passing in review and particularly that world which finds legal action necessary.

His administration of the law is just and at the same time merciful, making the ideal the people expect to find in a judge. Retain Judge Davison, Judge of Superior Court, Office No. 2. Pol. Adv.

Miss Luva Stratton — Dance Classes

The return of Miss Luva Stratton, teacher of the classic dance, from her Eastern visit of study and observation is most interesting news to dance students. Social dance classes are now open for enrollment and she features graded classes in modern classic technic. Her study of child psychology and wide experience has earned for her an enviable reputation in advancing the artistic careers of juveniles.

Miss Stratton brings to San Jose the exact types of new and modern social dances that are so popular in the east. For the benefit of fall and winter pleasures you will want to join these classes now.

Vote for A. A. Dempsey for Supervisor Fourth District

Without assumption, without seeking public acclaim Mr. A. A. Dempsey candidate for Supervisor 4th District, has for years filled a place in his community as one of its leading citizens, performing his duties of citizenship quietly yet efficiently, and asking nothing of his fellow-men. It is because of this long demonstrated capacity of citizenship and this willingness to serve without recognition that his friends are glad to give merited praise to Mr. Dempsey and to say that his candidacy for office warrants support.

He is a man of moral character, undisputed capabilities, and of energetic devotion to those principles of good government which are the essence of our democracy. He has given unselfishly of his time and his energies to every worthwhile civic enterprise looking toward the upbuilding of his state and community. As a candidate for office of Supervisor 4th District he brings a wealth of experience in public affairs, a keen mind, sound business judgment and a will to render service. He has already left indelibly the impress of his personality in his community and if given the support of the voters in November election, Mr. Dempsey says he will do great things for the 4th district as its supervisor. Pol. Adv.
